That An Icy Reception Chron 12/8/73 story is entirely new to me. I saw and heard nothing like it. Nor have I any recollection of ever having heard of a chief of state handling any diplomatic wife (except, of course, in utter privacy). This is unheard of and is another indication he really has flipped. Source of story not indicated, but it seems apparent that "patted... on the chest" means pawed her breasts. Whether "three times" means three separate time of thrice in succession is not so important as the fact that appears notto have been denied.

The conclusion of the story, about the iciness of the reception at the Desert Ball, is new to me. It may have appeared without my noticing it but I think that had it gotten any DC attention I'd have heard it. Or other within hearing because I've been getting up early and switching stations while getting started and doing things other then writing. There has been nothing like this that I've heard from the three cities I monitor early mornings nor on the DC news when I've listened during daylight.

The psychological deductions accumulate. Not much after 4 this a.m. I wrote several pages based on Connecticut Walker's Parade piece and some relevant clips I'd put aside and Helms' testimony on "psychological profiles."
